HUNTER EXHIBITORS ON THE MOVE

Blowing one's top is a comparatively common form of self-expression. More times than not it is accompanied by nothing more practical than verbiage which like summer thunderstorms eventually blow off over the horizon with their throaty noises, finally disappearing in long, low rumbles. People are wetter but no wiser as to the cause of all the sound and fury. One of the most frequent causes of such tempests in the show world is that of the judges. Regardless of the endeavors of show judges, somebody feels slighted. It is unfortunate but inescapable. As Mr. Van Sinderen, President of the Show Association pointed out three years ago at his annual meeting, there are too many judges who are sitting on their laurels, too few judges who excel in their abilities. He contends dead wood should remove themselves from the list of recognized judges. Whitney Stone was made chairman of a judge's committee and after an exhaustive review of the situation, came up with some well advised rule changes.

Even this action on the part of the Association has not stopped all of the criticism. There is still considerable deadwood in the Roster of Recognized Show judges; there are too few younger judges coming along and there are pitifully few top ranking horsemen judging regularly whom the majority of exhibitors agree are doing a first rate job. One of the country's leading exhibitors, a lady from Granville, Ohio, whose good performances have made both her horses and herself familiar and popular at every major show in the country, grew tired of all the noise and shouting. She decided last year to do something about it. As she explained, "The pressure has got to be taken off the judges." Judges will never act successfully without the confidence of the exhibitors and so Mrs. Sallie Sexton set about organizing the exhibitors to gain this confidence.

Her plans took concrete form this Fall at the Harrisburg Show, the Pennsylvania National, where she first unfolded a concrete proposal to do something more than talk about the judging situation. Her plan is embodied in a new Association called the Hunter Exhibitors Association; its primary purpose to create an active, conscientious and qualified panel of judges which has the full support of the exhibitors behind it and which is constantly under review and supervision.

At the National Horse Show at Madison Square, Mrs. Sexton called her second meeting of exhibitors together at the Belvidere Hotel Monday, November 5th. Approximately 70 exhibitors appeared. Mrs. Sexton talked well and convincingly. Her plan envisages a well paid steward ($10,000 a year salary) financed by the membership of the Hunter Exhibitors Association. It shall be this gentleman's duty to select a panel of 75 judges who will be acceptable to the exhibitors; such men and women will be selected by the steward for their proven ability as show judges; their names will be given to show committees in advance of the season and with the support of the exhibitors association solidly behind them, it is expected that show committees will welcome this hint and will choose from this list. Otherwise the show can expect an exhibitors' boycott on its hands.

Mrs. Sexton called for a vote. A few dissents were registered but the majority of exhibitors voted overwhelmingly for the plan. Mrs. Sexton was duly given authority to put it through by being elected President. Frank Hawkins, past President of the P. H. A. is Vice President. Treasurer is Henry Biddle, while the Secretary is Gregory McIntosh. Directors are Michael Walsh, Mrs. Hugh Barclay, Raymond Burr, Alex Calvert and Mrs. T. Kenneth Ellis. Significantly enough, the group are elected for one year only. Mrs. Sexton wants no deadwood on her committee.

The steward has not been selected, but will be announced shortly. His duties will be to constantly review the judging picture; recommend to his Hunter Exhibitors Association the 75 most qualified horsemen in the country to act as judges and then back up his selection by constant supervision, going from show to show to watch the judging and check on his selectees. The program will also include instruction of junior judges and an active campaign for full exhibitor membership, professional and amateur in the Hunter Exhibitors Association.

With the majority of exhibitors enlisted in this plan to clean up the judging at horse shows, the Association should be able to write its own ticket. Shows would be cutting off their noses if they refused to accept the exhibitors' own judging panel. Such a plan would take the onerous policing of recognized judging from off the shoulders of the American Horse Shows Association, a responsibility the Association has been loth to assume. It organizes the exhibitors whose chief concern is better judges and leaves the A. H. S. A. as rule making body. As a show is only so good as its exhibitors make it, the explosive problem of suitable judges is happily placed in the lap of these self-same exhibitors. If they blow their tops, they blow them at themselves and not the American Horse Shows Association.

Such a plan speaks far louder than words. It is a concrete proposal that will shortly be backed by constitution, by-laws and a representative well paid steward. The panel of judges will evoke much comment. Before its final selection it will have the approval of not only the officers and directors of the Hunter Exhibitors Association, but of all of its members as well.

Letters To The Editor

Revolutionary Ideas

Dear Editor:

These are revolutionary ideas. Sometimes, however, they are necessary in order to start an urgently needed evolution.

Let's put it bluntly: the horsemanship classes which we see in most shows today are nothing more than a farce and as indicative of the abilities of the participants as if they would ride a bicycle instead of a horse.

We see kids on fabulously trained horses ride a few times around the ring in the different gaits, take a few very low jumps and then—the judges stick their heads together and give out the ribbons.

These, at least, were the happenings in most of the horsemanship classes which I have watched in many shows during the last few years—with a few exceptions which cannot be commended highly enough.

What does this procedure indicate? Actually nothing, since anyone who has ridden a certain horse, well trained and with smooth gaits, for any length of time, can make a good figure on it—or he (or she) is a hopeless case.

Besides, this kind of judging puts too much emphasis on appearance (a kid in a well tailored outfit will look better than one who has to buy ready made clothing) and forced posture (which can lead to such extravagances like in the case of the child that used a ruler to find out whether the distance between his chin and the chest is correct).

What we need are horsemen and horsewomen who can handle themselves and their mounts under difficult or unexpected situations, who can make an unwilling or not-so-well trained horse do what they want him to do and who are able eventually to train a horse by themselves to a certain point, which naturally does not have to be complete perfection (that we leave to the professionals).

We shall never find these children by our horsemanship tests if we continue to conduct them as has been done too often up to now.

New and definite rules should be set up to govern all horsemanship classes:

- Change of horses should be made mandatory, or one or more strange horses should be brought into the ring for all contestants to ride and jump.
- Riding and jumping without stirrups should be included in the tests (I would like to see some of our blue ribbon winners when they ride cross-country or in the park and lose their stirrups accidentally!).

c) Unexpected gaits should be requested, like taking one jump in canter, one in trot, come to a complete standstill between jumps, having the direction reversed etc.

d) Mounting and dismounting on strange horses should be included in the judging.

e) Even bridling and saddling a horse might sometimes give a clue, especially when it is difficult for the judges to come to a decision.

These ideas can certainly still be enlarged. They also might be changed as long as we include in the tests more than just form and appearance.

If we follow such principles regularly in all classes and in all shows we might get results eventually—and it would not surprise me at all if they would be quite different from the ones we are getting now. We may really find out who is the best instead of who looks best.

Form is necessary and important but it should not be exaggerated. It is more important to find, further and pin with the blue ribbon the boy or girl who is able to carry himself well on a horse under all kinds of conditions. That child has the makings of a real horseman or horsewoman. Horsemastership rather than horsemanship should be the goal of these tests.

The National Horse Show

International Competition Highlights All Star Cast of Show World Champions

Nancy Lee

Col. Humberto Mariles definitely stamped himself as the international rider who gets into the winner's circle the greatest number of times. Out of nine individual classes, he won five and in the final class of the 1951 National Horse Show, the International Perpetual Challenge Trophy, his team won the event with a total of eight faults. Captain Magee, Col. Mariles and Mr. Arthur McCashin were the only riders with clean performances, but the total faults of the teams determined the winners.

The scene at Madison Square Garden changes many times during the 8-day National Horse Show. There are the opening ceremonies on Tuesday night and the closing event the following Tuesday when the ring is filled with the International Teams, an army band, dignitaries and New York Mounted Policemen as escorts. Picture 19 junior hunt teams parading before their class on Saturday night; 62 jumpers during the morning hours awaiting their turn during the eliminations; completion of classes in various divisions which brings out the champion and reserve horses and they have the ring to themselves as they make a final appearance. From early morning hours until late at night, activity hums with only a pause during lunch and dinner hours when the cleaning brigade takes over and the lost and found department receives articles which will be retrieved later by the owners.

In 1949 the jumper which chalked up the greatest number of points in the open division was Millarden Farms' versatile All Afire. This year the brown gelding captured the imagination of the crowd as he started accumulating points with the tri-color in sight. Always in pursuit was the national champion of Max Bonham. These two narrowed the running down between themselves and prior to the eliminations for the stake class, they were tied with seventeen points each. Both horses qualified, but then All Afire came into the ring as the first horse to jump in the class Tuesday evening. Four faults were chalked up against the gelding, but that was the best performance and the take home money, plus the additional five points sent the tri-color to the Millarden Farm's tack room. Last year All Afire's stable mate My Goodness was reserve, making this stable's entries the winners of the two championships and a reserve in three years at the national.

Following the completion of the young hunter classes on Thursday evening, the first champion of the 1951 National Horse Show was planned. This was C. M. Greer's homebred Pike's Peak, a 4-year-old bay gelding (by Wait A Bit—Highformation) which last year was the 3-year-old champion of Virginia. Ridden throughout the show by Stuart Lanan, Pike's Peak caught the eye of many at the ringside, completing his performances with an outstanding round in the stake event. His 17 1-2 points put him at the head of the list. Among the other young hunters which were in pursuit of Pike's Peak was a 3-year-old grey gelding, Strawberry Fox, owned by Mrs. James C. Hamilton and ridden by her daughter, Mrs. Grover Stephens. A son of Thellusson—Susan Brown, the grey showed great improvement over his Pennsylvania National Horse Show rounds and stacked up 12 1-2 points for reserve. He left the Garden headed for the stable of Miss Eleanor Sears, his new owner.

Strawberry Fox didn't limit his ribbon winning rounds to the young division only, he bounced right back in the green ranks and again the winner of the stake was the champion. He picked up 10 points for the tri-color. Waverly Farm's Silverken, ridden throughout the show by Miss Molly McIntosh, proved to be the closest contender in this division, garnering 7 1-2 points for reserve honors. He too didn't make the return trip to Virginia as Max Bonham halted him for a trip to Indiana.

There was almost no end to the excitement provided by the International Teams and if, by chance, the time began to drag a bit, the appearance of the teams stepped up the tempo. For quite a few years Capt. Humberto Mariles has been holding sway in these ranks but this year Capt. Michael Tubridy really set out in earnest to keep the Irish team right in there. Friday evening Capt. Tubridy sailed around the ring in The West Point Challenge Trophy event, the last rider to go and the 4th straight to be without faults. However, he had looked over the diagram of the course, found that the starter marker was now shown thereon and therefore he could go on either side of it. He picked up speed following his first trip around the course, went on the inside of the marker and from then on was home safe. Capt. Mariles, who had also had a clean round, did not agree with the decision which atoned Capt. Tubridy's trip and did not come into the ring to receive his 4th award.

Saturday evening in the International Special Challenge Trophy,

Thursday for The President of Mexico Trophy. Announcer Otis Trowbridge took a deep breath, looked out across the ring again and then plunged into a description of the route. About half-way along, he stopped, "Oh! That's wrong." Orchestra Leader Stanley Melba immediately struck up, "I won't be home until morning". One rider rode 3 horses and U. S. Equestrian Team, Inc.'s rider, Mr. Arthur McCashin, must have been throwing a leg over some cow ponies while he was at Fort Riley. He practically changed horses in mid-air, dashed back to the course and in the time of 2.55, he jumped 39 fences. He received quite an ovation for finishing 2nd to Col. Mariles's winning rides.

Open jumpers really have to work for their ribbons as they are so great in number that eliminations are necessary to get them down to a "working" size class for the afternoon session. Their first big job was the 3-day knock-down-and-out which Pat Dixon and Millarden Farms' easy going All Afire accounted for with 12 points. Behind them for 2nd in the finals was Chet Bonham riding Mrs. Hubert R. Thomas' Velvet Lassie. Velvet Lassie got into her stride in the $250 open jumper event, scored under F. E. I. Rules to handle the jump-off and garner the blue.

The next finals in the open ranks concluded the $1,250 touch-and-out 3-day event. A popular winner was the U. S. Equestrian Team, Inc.'s Grey Fox which had garnered 10 points. In for reserve was Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Nardin's Trader Bedford with 152 points.

Juniors landed en masse and the week end at The National was turned over to them. Two important events, the A. S. P. C. A. championship and the Medal Class, hunter seat, had to be decided for the hunting juniors. Victor Hugo-Vidal, Jr., who celebrated his 18th birthday two weeks before the show and consequently cannot compete again, captured the medal event.

For the first time since 1941 when Billy Steinkraus scored a double in the equitation events by winning both the Good Hands and MacLay Trophy, the feat was duplicated. Skipper Schroeder, who was selected as the best for the Good Hands class on Saturday, came right back in different clothes and a different horse on Sunday afternoon to handle the route to the championship. He deserves not only a great deal of credit for his outstanding performances but he also had strong competition from his appendix and had an appointment at the hospital at the conclusion of the show.

Taken as a team or in pairs, the Canadian Equestrian Team just wasn't to be beaten in the three events for the Low Score Competition. Following the events, the team of Lt. Col. Charles Baker, Jr. and Messrs. W. R. Ballard and Tom Gayford had accumulated only 1-2 fault. This wasn't a jumping fault but was scored as a pair fault. The U. S. Equestrian Team, Inc. was 2nd, this latter team having beaten Canada at The Pennsylvania National.

With the $1,000 International Stake scheduled for Sunday evening, the Mexican Army Team got a strong foothold with 6 entries but it took the combination of Col. Humberto Mariles and Arete to turn in the winning round. Capt. Kevin Barry of the Irish Army Team rode Ballyneety to tie with Col. Mariles and in the jump off, Capt. Barry scurried around the course in .37 but with a knock-down, Col. Mariles and Arete were timed in .47 2-5 but had only 3 faults scored against them for a refusal.

After scoring the winning round in the Pennsylvania National Trophy on Monday afternoon, all eyes were on Mr. Alvaro Toledo and Loverain of the Brazilian Equestrian Team for the International Individual Championship Challenge Trophy. Getting away fast, Mr. Toledo and Loverain were over the 1st safely but after landing, Loverain threw a shoe which flew through the air outside the ring and hit Brig. Gen. Tuckerman. The next jump came down. Five riders tied for 1st and then only Capt. Barry, Capt. Ruben Uriza and Col. Mariles were left. Time was not a factor and displaying the coolness for which he has become noted in international competition, Col. Mariles rode Arete to a clean performance to give the Mexican Army Team a 2nd leg on the trophy.

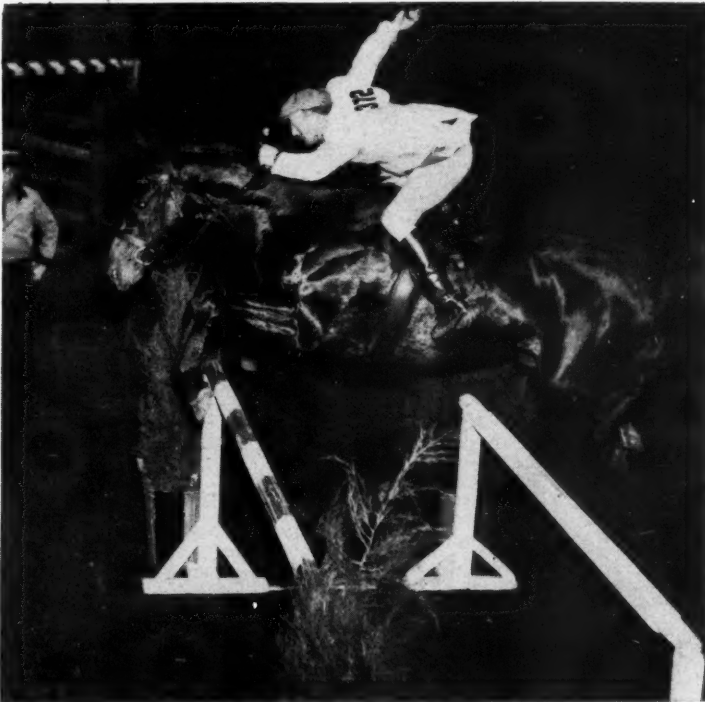

Working hunters completed their scheduled events on Monday evening and in this division the stakes class did not follow the pattern of the young and green hunters. Mrs. W. Haggin Perry rode the little 15.0 hand Dynaflo to receive the judges' nod. However, owners-riders Miss Peggy Augustus on Defense and Miss Maxine Ix on Amy Broom had been garnering points along the way and the former was pinned champion with 14 1-2 points and Ally Broom was reserve with 11 1-2.

In 1948 Llangollen Farm's homebred Adventure annexed the conformation hunter tri-color and this was his first return to this show since 1949. Ridden by Dick Kirby, the 7-year-old chestnut gelding chalked up an early lead and continued his winning ways throughout. The extent of his winnings is clearly indicated when his points totalled 26. Reserve was Forward Passer, owned by Mrs. L. J. Knowles and ridden by Miss Barbara Pease. The 10-year-old chestnut gelding accumulated 12 1-2 points.

This tri-color was the 3rd one won by Virginia horses which state also accounted for 3 reserve awards. Not a bad showing out of 4 possible rosettes on the hunter division.

Maryland ponies again swept the board. Owners-riders Miss Cynthia Graffam on Quiz Kid and Master Fritz Sterbak on Surprise tied for Capt. Mariles rode all 3 horses to represent his team and cleared the 8 jumps in .31 2-5 on Arete. Capt. Tubridy and Aberlow came into the ring with the spectators riding solidly behind them. He saved ground on the turns as he also turned in a clean performance. Then the wait for the official decision, 8 jumps clean, time—.31 3-5.

Bad luck had dogged the tracks of the Brazilian Equestrian Team which was competing in this country for the first time. The picture changed during the first International event opening day and the only civilian rider on the team, Mr. Alvaro Toledo, chalked up a winning round on Loverain to win the Royal Winter Fair Trophy.

There could not have been a more fitting winner of the Royce A. Drake memorial challenge trophy than Major John Russell of the U. S. Equestrian Team, Inc. This trophy was donated by the 1948 U. S. Army Equestrian Team and was put into competition for the first time this year. There were only two clean performances, Major Russell on Blue Devil and Capt. Kevin Barry of the Irish Army Team on Ballyneety. Blue Devil scored 4 faults to win in the jump off as Capt. Barry was charged with 8 faults.

A course such as hasn't been seen at The National came to light on points. However, the next day, it was a sad story. The grey gelding, which had been ridden by Billy Steinkraus in all his classes until his rider sprained his ankle and was replaced Friday evening by Hugh Wiley, was disqualified. In making the original entries, Rascal had been entered but last minute arrangements sent Grey Fox along instead. Due to a misunderstanding about the handling of the entries, Rascal's name appeared in the program. The disqualification of Grey Fox moved the veteran All Afire into the winner's circle.

Miss Suzanne Norton loaded up her horses, left New Mexico headed for the American Royal. From there she went to The Pennsylvania National, then The National and following The Royal Winter Fair and the Chicago International, the itinerary will be completed. Riding a 14.3 aged bay gelding, Three Feathers, Miss Norton outjumped the rest in the $1,000 P. H. A. trophy event Saturday evening. The fast, quick moving "pony" proved to be the best.

Saturday evening was also the night for the presentation of the Professional Horsemen's championship trophy. The horse which had scored the greatest number of points in P. H. A. classes during the year was All Afire, having a total of 179

Little Sunswick and the Bayard Tuckermans Play Host To Eastern Dog Club New England Style

Jane Dane

Clambakes are associated in my mind with hot July or August beaches, greenheads, mosquitos, sand, and a wet bathing suit. Not so the clambake the Bayard Tuckermans put on for the Eastern Dog Club. The day was cloudy, the time noon of Sunday, the 30th, the place "Little Sunswick", a New England farm set in fields above the Westport river with the islands of North Shawn standing clear in Buzzards Bay.

Members of the Eastern and their guests drifted in, car after car, to admire the Angus cattle and the race mares and foals standing at attention beside the bar conveniently located in a corner of the paddock. There were the usual tweeds and caps, plus a few green coats, for the Waldingfield Beagles were also there to show the Eastern breeders of fine show dogs what a working pack in the field could do.

Hounds moved off with what looked like a field of a hundred hungry and thirsty people. When I asked my sister, Mrs. Tuckerman, how many she expected, she said "I have only the vaguest idea really, but I don't even realize what a hundred people look like." "Well, take a good gander" I said, "because there are over that right now!"

The sport was poor at first, due to scenting probably, but eventually a good running rabbit was put up in a swamp and though the swamp was surrounded by the field to such an extent the bunny must needs go round and round, there was some grand music.

So back to the house for some refreshments and greeting of members, guests, friends, et al. The day was rapidly deteriorating into a blustery southeasterly. Mittens would have been a fine idea except for dipping clams in melted butter and extricating sausages from a steaming paper bag. Actually, the food was wonderful. We sat at long tables on benches and enjoyed everything. It was one of those lovely parties of all ages and classes, from Chetwood. Smith to Susan Appleton Tuckerman; from Alex Begg, our beloved blacksmith, to our genial host, Mr. Bayard. There were all interests; foxhunting—the John Grews were full of their day at Groton with Bunny Almy; beagling—I was trying to cage some red hounds from the Waldingfield; roosters—The Wests were there and over and above all the very real interest everyone there had in improving their breed to its highest standards.

The Eastern Dog Club was formed in 1912 to take over the franchise of running the Boston dog show from the old New England Kennel Club. That Club was a contemporary of the Westminster Kennel Club of New York, the two Clubs running the largest indoor shows in this country. The Westminster Kennel Club still, of course, runs the New York show. George S. West was the prime mover in founding the Eastern Dog Club and he and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr. are the only charter members left. Each year the Eastern puts on a two day show around Washington's birthday and has a puppy match each spring and fall at one of the members places. The officers of the Club for this year are:

President, Paul T. Haskell; Vice President, Henry Wheeler, Jr.; Secretary, Kenneth C. Tiffin; Treasurer, James P. Parker, Jr.

After lunch and lots of hot coffee, a ring was made for the puppies and the show was on. Mrs. Walter McCammon was the patient, competent, frozen judge. On this day the Greyhounds and Beagles really shuddered around the ring, while the Retrievers and Great Pyrenees enjoyed every minute. The first class called was for American Bred Dogs and Bitches, not necessarily puppies, but definitely not champions. George West's Greyhound won with Mrs. Choate's Sealyham second. In puppy dogs, 3-6 months, the blue went to Mrs. Choate's Sealyham; second to the Walker's Irish Terrier. In puppy bitches, 3-6, first to Mr. West's Greyhound; second to Mrs. Reed's Alredale. In puppy dogs, 6-9, first to Mrs. Crane's Pyrenees, the only entry, and in bitches, 6-9, first to Mrs.

Jane Bayard Tuckerman with Beagle Entry.

Tuckerman's Chesapeake Retriever, also a single entry. Then winners, and the new puppy champion for this meeting was Mrs. Crane's Bagatelle, a big, lovely sound dog, just nine months old.

During the show Mr. Parker, the Treasurer, had a very shy young puppy in one of the bitch classes. Someone asked "What breed is that?" "Why that," Jim replied, "is a Trimaraner, if she can't get first or second she will surely cop third." She was a Setter and she didn't. Josiah H. Child was dragging a very small reluctant Beagle pup about when a spectator remarked "a beagle should at all times carry its flag alertly and have a gay, happy appearance". She didn't win either.

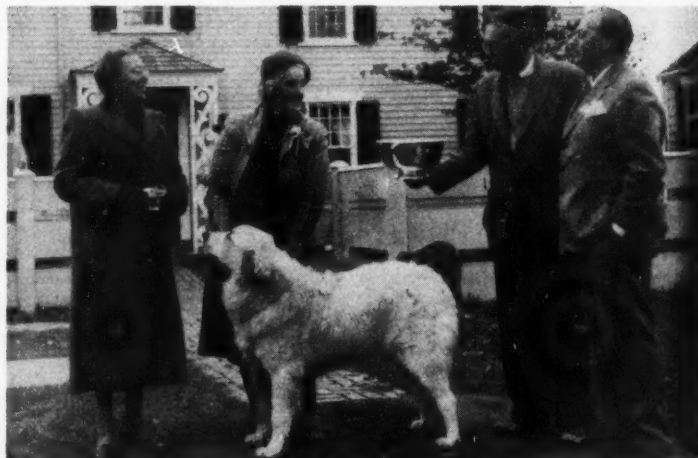

And so everyone back to town, chilled to the bone, but with a lot of memories of a truly variegated sporting day.

Attendance Slightly Off At Empire City At Jamaica, But Betting Shows Increase

Joe H. Palmer

The opening weeks of Empire City-Jamaica showed a familiar pattern, or at least they would have done so had not the last three days of the second full week been unspeakably vile, with rain and cold and gloom holding down the saner of the horseplayers. Up to that point there had been a gain in attendance; with bad weather practically killing the third Saturday there was a slight drop.

The comparison here offered is the first fourteen days of 1951 against the first fifteen in 1950, because in each case three Saturdays are included. Last year, over the fifteen-day period, the average attendance was 21,242. Through the first fourteen days this year it was 20,757, a very trifling drop, and one which will be made up for if the weather stays decent, as it now promises to do.

But business at the mutual windows was brisker, bad weather and all. The 1951 average was $1,864,740, against a $1,767,601 for the first fifteen days last year. The probability is that the entire meeting will show a gain in both departments. But the cold weather during the first few days of November was adequate warning to the group which thinks New York racing ought to be extended for two more weeks. If anything, the season ought to be cut.

Two championships were not conferred, but confirmed, during the second full week of the meeting; that of Rose Jet among the 2-year-old fillies and of Counterpoint among the 3-year-old colts. I should guess that the Whitney colt should get horse-of-the-year honors as well off his race in the Empire City Handicap.

Rose Jet, a home-bred by Jet Pilot, whose first crop of foals have made him one of the most sought-after of the younger stallions, has now won $130,785, and in her age division is second only to Tom Fool, which has $155,910. She has an excellent chance to pass him, since mud forced him out of the Pimlico Futurity, and Rose Jet still has a chance at the Marguerite.

She won the Demoiselle by running in front all the way, or nearly so. Hal Price Headley's Papoose, saving some ground on the inside, got to her in mid-stretch, and may have had the lead for a stride or two. But with the pressure on, Rose Jet came away again and won by three-fourths of a length. Hedley Woodhouse, who rode her, reported that she had pulled herself up three times in the running, apparently feeling that to be in front was enough, and he barely got her going again after the third time. "She still has to learn to run," he said.

Rose Jet's dam, Knots of Roses, is a War Admiral mare for which Maine Chance Farm paid $5,100 in 1944 and did not succeed in getting to the races. Rose Jet is her first foal to race, and with the Matron and Selima to add to the Demoiselle, there isn't much question that she's the best of her division.

The track over which Counterpoint won the Empire City Handicap was as bad as the Jamaica strip can get, which isn't really so bad because of the high percentage of sand in it. But it had had three days of nearly steady rain, and it was deep in slop. Counterpoint, which had Dave Gorman up, had only one horse beaten in the field of thirteen when he got to the five-furlong pole. He started picking up horses there, and on the final turn, I confess I lost him. Next time I saw him he was on the outside, charging tremendously, and it was obvious a sixteenth out that he would win. Considering that he has now won four stakes in succession, at distances from a mile and three-sixteenths to two miles, and that earlier in the season he had set a Belmont Park track record at a mile and a furlong and had won the Belmont Stakes easily from Battlefield, there isn't much way to rank him below any horse in training. He beat Hill Prince twice at level weight, and in the Empire City he was carrying 130 pounds, giving six to Hall of Fame, and fourteen to Altered, which could beat Battlefield with a twelve-pound pull. Altered, by the way, ran no sort of race at all, and my guess is that he's been run into the ground. Neither did Bold, for different reasons. Since his last start at Saratoga Bold had been through the fence a couple of times, and had put one exercise boy in the hospital, and it was considered a minor triumph that he got around the first turn instead of winding up on New York Boulevard. That's the sort of disposition he has, and the race doesn't necessarily represent the best he can do.

Counterpoint, by Count Fleet from the Selima winner, Jabot, was in danger of being shot once, having broken a sesamoid bone when he was a yearling. "I guess some people would have shot him," Sylvester Veitch remarked in the spring. In the Dwyer, after his two big spring victories, Counterpoint bruised a foot, and it was thought he would be out for the rest of the year. He healed quick, and is now the sea-

Keeneland Yearling Buyer

Young Texan Knew What He Wanted,
Bought It and Took It Home

Arnold Shrimpton

He was an extraordinary looking youth, to say the least of him, and he caught your attention immediately. Gangling, tall, taciturn and teen-aged, he just mooned around the Keeneland sales with both hands in his jeans' pockets. He was very obviously a fish out of water. His colorful raiment would have put Joseph to shame and immediately betokened him as a son o' Texas. Checkerboard shirt, skin-tight blue jeans tucked into high heeled Texas riding boots, fringed leather Indian jacket, with, of course, the whole outfit topped off by the inevitable ten-gallon Stetson.

In my mad pre-sales dash from stall to stall, looking at other peoples' yearlings, I kept bumping into him invariably at the same place—just lounging around the Mereworth barn. He spoke to no one and just stood and "chawed" on the end of a whisp of straw. He seemed to be almost too true to character to be authentic, and I had the feeling that perhaps Mr. Mayer had imported him from Hollywood to lend a Western touch to the Keeneland Sales. If you had told me he was getting ten bucks a day just to hang around, I would not have batted an eyelid, for he seemed to have unlimited time on his hands, and nothing to do with it. His only interest was in Barn F and Hip No. 267. Never once did he ask to see that yearling himself, but whenever someone else did, he was always there. If you watched him closely, you could see his dead-pan countenance light up into something that was almost emotion whenever 267 was brought out of its stall. Yet he never examined the horse thoroughly, but was always around, watching, when others did.

I had first noticed him on the Sunday afternoon, preceding the opening of the sales, and on the Wednesday morning he was still in his accustomed place, lolling idly over the barrier of the Mereworth Barn. He seemed to have squatter's rights. He never showed up in the sales pavilion while the selling was going on, yet whenever I passed by Barn F on my way to the track kitchen, there he was, just a-lounging and a-chewing and awaiting for Hip 267. He made me so danged curious that I couldn't get him out of my head. It was just like the practical joker who stands and gawks up into the sky and before long a crowd of idiots has collected around him and are vying with each other to see something that isn't there.

I looked Hip No. 267 up in my catalogue. It was a bay colt by Ariel out of Miss Frill, she by Display. A nice enough colt, but nothing to get excited over. The only interest it had for me was the fact that it was, in all probability, the last yearling by Ariel that would ever pass through a sales ring. I tried to scrape up a nosy conversation with the boy by asking him what his name was. He said "John Glenn Haisell". I asked him where he came from; he replied "Crowell, Texas". Just that, and nothing more. I asked him if he liked the Ariel colt, and he said "Yep". Then I asked if he were going to buy him and he said "Maybe". Still babbling on, I asked him if he had made the long trek from Texas with friends? This time he gave me a scintillating "Nope", for my curiosity. By himself then? I inquired, "Yep", he answered. "How?" said I, becoming infected with his monosyllabic mania. "Auto" he replied, and as if to signify that it was none of my damn business (as indeed it wasn't) he laboriously straightened up and walked away. It was quite plain that he considered me the gabbiest guy in ten states, and from the contemptuous way that he spat across my bow as he ambled off, I began to feel it.

I had almost managed to forget about the solitary cowboy until Wednesday afternoon's auction. Half way through it, when the announcer said "This is Hip No. 267, property of The Mereworth Farm, a bay colt by Ariel out of Miss Frill, etc., etc. I thought of him at once and looked around to see if my loquacious friend from Texas was present. Sure enough, there he was, standing just inside one of the doors (although there was plenty of room to sit down) just as if he wanted no truck, by proximity, with these Easterners and city slickers.

The bidding followed the usual pattern. Somebody said "one thousand and dollars", which was quickly increased to two, three, four and five. Then came the inevitable lull, and when George Swinebroad resumed his cry, he pointed to the door and shouted "Six thousand from a new man". Back came a bid of seven thousand from the ringside and after a long, long pause, "seven thousand five hundred" from the boy from Texas. Then it went to eight thousand, and after that, in one-hundred raises to nine thousand. In contrast to the quick responses from his adversary, the lad at the door thought long and carefully before each bid. They had to be coaxed and wrung from him as only George Swinebroad can do. It was as if each hundred dollars was a quart of blood. Finally, the ringside bidder said "Ninety-one hundred". The youth turned on his heel as if to leave the pavilion, and then quickly changing his mind he turned about and held up two fingers. The auctioneer intoned "Ninety-two, ninety-two, hundred who'll say three?". The opposing bidder shook his head. Within a matter of seconds it was all over, and down came the gavel. The cowboy from Crowell had bought the last of the Ariels.

He signed the sales slip and I then saw him elbowing his way down the gangway with a sheaf of bills in his hands. I got up and followed with the intention of congratulating him. When I reached the sales office grill, he was in slow and reluctant conversation with one of the officials.

"Guess I've not got enough dough here, partner" he was explaining. "All I come with was seventy-five hundred, so will you take that on account, while I wire my brother in Crowell and sashay up the rest?" "Recon it 'ud be here by morning". Now, the officials of the Breeders' Sales Company have had to listen to far more unreasonable demands than that in their time, so the matter was quickly arranged. He was to deposit his $7,500 immediately and upon payment of the remaining $1,700, he would receive the release of his purchase.

Next morning, just before sales time, he was back at the office to settle his debt. As he received the bill of sale and release slip, something akin to a grin of triumph came over his lean and mournful face.

I asked him if I could help him with his horse, and, much to my surprise, he allowed he might need a little neighborly assistance in loading. We took the Ariel colt out of its stall and walked it over to the loading ramp. On the way over I asked him what he planned to do with it.

"Waal, first I reckon I'm goin' to get him home and jealous up all the boys a bit" he answered. "You see fella, out in Texas this little ole colt's pappy is what that red running horse, Man o'War was down

Pimlico Steeplechasing

Patty Smithwick Wins 2 Out of 3; Extra Points Claimed By S. C. Clark, Jr.

William Jaeger

Steeplechasing returned to a recognized track in Maryland when the Maryland Jockey Club presented its initial infield event of the current Pimlico fall meet on Monday, Oct. 29.

And Montpelier's Hampton Roads, a striking bay gelded 8-year-old son of Annapolis and *Lady Noel by Gainsborough, bred by Mrs. Marion DuPont Scott, mistress of Montpelier, jumped into the act with gusto and made it a resounding success when young Ray Woolfe, Jr., drove him hard in the run through the final flat stages of the race to eke out a nose verdict over John M. Schiff's Phiblant, the favorite after being headed momentarily by that one in mid-stretch.

Phiblant, with the pace the entire trip under a well-judged ride by Patty Smithwick, just wasn't good enough but managed to easily take second money by 5 lengths over A. C. Randolph's Tellanrun, one half of the Jack Skinner-trained entry. The other portion of the coupling, Rokeby Stable's Genanoke, couldn't get clear in the fight for the early lead and wound up 5th. Lowry Watkins' Tourist List separated the pair. Mrs. C. M. Paterno's Errolford dumped Frank Adams at the eighth jump while trailing but "Dooley" wasn't hurt. Only 6 contested the two miles test over 15 jumps. The infield course was fast and Hampton Roads was timed in 3:51 under 147.

Hampton Roads, trained by Woolfe's daddy, quite a shakes as a rider in his day, was always a contender and hooked up with Phiblant curving around the upper bend the last time. From the top of the stretch it was ding-dong with first one, then the other getting his nose in front.

The steeplechase offering at Pimlico on Wednesday, Oct. 31, wasn't much of a contest for J. M. Mulford's Proceed. The 4-year-old gelded son of Star Beacon and Great Hurry, by Hard Tack, played games with Brooks Parker's *Basalt for 14 jumps of the 15-jump two miles test and then drew clear in the last furlong to hang up a ten-lengths victory. Preston Burch's Astronomer was 3rd, beaten off 3 lengths by *Basalt.

The last named might have provided much stiffer opposition in the late stages if he hadn't bobbed at the final obstacle with Mel Ferral. He cut out an exciting pace and swept back repeated challenges by Astronomer with ease but couldn't cope with the stretch speed of Proceed.

Six started in the infield event and Auburn Farm's Syracuse Lad finished 4th, 40 lengths to the rear of Astronomer. Globe Trotter, owned, trained and ridden by Joe de Murguindo, was always beaten away off and wound up 5th and last, some 100 lengths off Syracuse Lad. J. F. McHugh's Whatsinit was the favorite but he tossed Earl Phelps at the first jump. Phelps escaped injury.

Proceed's time was 3:48 1-5 over the fast turf.

Steeplechase Secretary J. Fred Colwill's conditions for the claiming infield event at Pimlico on Friday, Nov. 2, were immensely popular. As a result, eleven $4500 down to $4000 platens were entered and first honors went to Lazy F Ranch's Extra Points.

Patty Smithwick did the saddle chores in this one and it was his second score out of the three steeplechase races held during the week at the Maryland Jockey Club course. He was 2nd on Phiblant, beaten a nose, in the other.

Extra Points, trained by the angular Oleg Dubassoff, closed ground steadily in the 15-jump, two mile event and won easily by 3 1-2 lengths over Stephen C. Clark, Jr.'s My Good Man. The last named was 7 lengths clear of L. C. Williams' Allflor.

After that came Mrs. T. A. Randolph's Uncle Joe, Brookmeade Stable's Band Leader, Mrs. W. H. Perry's Trepid, P. J. MacMillan's Fourth of July and Ann Bockius' Mighty Casey. My Good Man and Trepid raced as an entry.

H. A. Dunn's Leche Hombre lost Howard Cruz at the first jump. Mrs. M. Walsh's Reno Sam dumped Frank Adams at the ninth and Anthony Bonuomo's Phalanger unseated Orlan A. Brown at the tenth. All three riders escaped injury. Reno Sam was leading at the time of his casualty over the soft turf.

When Reno Sam went to the sidelines, My Good Man took over but his stay was short lived as Smithwick brought Extra Points up from fourth place after a turn of the field. He moved to the front coming to the last brush and drew out thereafter, and his time was 3:57.

The race proved costly to Lazy F, however, because Extra Points was claimed out of the race for $4500 by Stephen C. Clark, Jr.

Jack Rabbit Wins Steeplechase At Myopia Hunt Race Meeting

Editor's Note: Mrs. Heath Morse scored a double win at the 33rd annual race meeting of the Myopia Hunt Club, held at the Groton House Farm, Hamilton, Mass., on Sat., Oct. 27. Her first win was in the ladies' flat race when she booted home George Horne's Tarhoy and the 2nd in the ladies' steeplechase on Mrs. Crocker Snow's Pennant Prince.

The men's flat race was won by Michael Murphy's Hill Scout with Mr. John Grew up, and the main event of the day, the men's steeplechase, by Mrs. F. J. McSherry's Jack Rabbit. For an account of this race we will switch you to the winning owner via letter, because we like the sporting quality of its contents....

Dear Chronicle:

Thought you might like to know that Jack Rabbit won the Mortimer Challenge Cup, feature race of the Myopia season, at the 33rd annual race meeting.

His win was thanks in no small part to New England hospitality, and the New England conscience! The hospitality is not so well known, perhaps, as the conscience, but both are admirable, and often combined in the same person, as in the case of glad to see his courage and persistence rewarded.

Jack started several lengths behind the other contenders, going at the steady, smooth pace he sets himself. "He'll never make up that distance" was heard on all sides. Knowing Jack, and the three mile course, soft going, and two wide water jumps, I was very confident. After the first mile Jack began to creep up on the lead horses, and pass them one by one. He won by three lengths, and wasn't even blowing. The steep, rocky trails in these Blue Hills must keep a horse fit!

The meet was very successful from the spectator's standpoint, as well as from the contender's and the committee's. The course was designed for maximum visibility, the pickers on the hillsides had only to stand to see all the races; there were no casualties; and a tidy sum was realized for the panning fund.

Mrs. Francis P. Sears (mother of Mrs. Dulaney Randolph) gave a delightful tea after the races, at which M. F. H. Winthrop made a graceful speech of welcome to the "winner from Virginia" (meaning me!) and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird presented the handsome trophy.

Cheerio, and come up before winter sets in!

Elizabeth McSherry

Monmouth County Hunt Meeting

Crown Royal Wins Half-Length Victory From Night Patrol In Feature Event

Edward H. Bennett

With nearly perfect conditions, as to the weather and the going, the Monmouth County Hunt Race Meeting drew a large crowd on Saturday, October 27.

The first race was a 2 mile steeplechase for non-winners, other than hunt meetings, claimers or hurdle races, and attracted a field of 5. They were Sidney Culver's High Road, who this time had Elwood Carter as pilot, Mrs. L. H. Kelly's Scotch Wave, a recent winner over hurdles at Rolling Rock; Happy Hill Farm's *Sonatine ridden by Evan Jackson; Burley Cock's Maid ridden by M. Ferral; and James Pogue's Martin Wing with Kenny Field up.

There was no delay at the start and *High Road immediately went to the front followed by *Sonatine, Martin Wing and Scotch Wave. This order remained unchanged for one circuit of the course. As they went down the dip the pace quickened and between the last two fences the race was definitely between *Sonatine and Martin Wing. What had promised to be an exciting battle was abruptly terminated by *Sonatine's mistake, which unseated Evan Jackson. Kenny Field had only to sit still and gallop home an easy winner followed by Scotch Wave who made up a lot of ground and ran a very good race for his first time over fences. *High Road was third and *Killarney Maid last.

The next race, the co-feature, was the Monmouth County Hunt Cup, a 3-mile chase over 24 timber fences. The 7 horses to face Mr. Plumb were Tourist Dream ridden by E. H. Bennett; *Tolbiac ridden by Mr. H. Hammond; Phil's Pet ridden by Mr. Jelke, Major X ridden by Capt. Furnival; Second Mate ridden by Mr. E. Weymouth; Steel Plate ridden by Mr. H. Stradley and *McGinty Moore ridden by M. J. Ferral. As was expected Second Mate set a moderately fast pace for a little over 2 miles. Behind him Tourist Dream and *Tolbiac were somewhat ahead of the others. After the 20th fence, Second Mate had had enough and Tourist Dream took the lead closely followed by *McGinty Moore and *Tolbiac. Over the second last fence Tourist Dream was still in front and going very well; however *McGinty Moore was going equally well and came into the last fence on even terms. This obstacle was taken by *McGinty Moore slightly faster and he landed with a length's advantage, which he increased to 2 at the finish. *Tolbiac ran very well to finish 3rd followed by Second Mate and Phil's Pet.

Poor Tom McKelvey had the misfortune to lose a very nice horse, Steel Plate, who broke his leg. Capt. Furnival pulled up Major X, who seemed unfit for the journey.

The third race of a 1 1-4 miles on the flat drew a field of 13. *Henrico soon went to the front with the rest closely bunched behind him. About 2 furlongs from home the *Nasrullah colt, *Tico Tico, well handled by Jimmie Walker, one-time leading apprentice in England, took the lead and drew out to win handily from *Henrico and Colonel V. Admiral Tan ran on well to finish 4th.

Now came the feature race of the day, the Monmouth County Gold Cup, a 2-mile handicap chase of $1,000 added. A field of 5 well matched horses were saddled and Teddy Briar was made favorite on the strength of his good race at Belmont Park at the United Hunts Meeting, where he beat some useful chasers. The other runners were *Cloonshoe ridden by E. Phelps, Night Patrol and S. Riles, Crown with Paddy Smithwick up, and his stable companion *Allflor, ridden by Jimmie Murphy.

Night Patrol was quickly sent into a comfortable lead and he set a fast pace until they jumped the first fence for the second time. At this point Crown Royal was shaken up and it soon became apparent that he was going to be a strong factor at the finish: It now turned into a very exciting race and as they appeared from the far turn Night Patrol and Crown Royal were about level with Teddy Briar drawing up to challenge. There was no change over the second to last fence and the two leaders were really flying as they came to the last on even terms. Here Crown Royal made a great leap and landed in front. R. McDonald found little racing room in his attempt to come through on the inside with the result that Teddy Briar went through the wing and gave Bobby McDonald a nasty looking fall; fortunately neither were hurt. In a very thrilling finish Crown Royal was strongly handled and he went on to win a very good race by half a length from Night Patrol. Allflor who had jumped very poorly during the last mile finished third some distance in front of *Cloonshoe.

In the last race, 7 furlongs on the flat, Mr. Plumb handled a large field of anxious riders and nervous horses with great aplomb, and they were well away in short order. Ferd, whose previous form and many stakes made him the best thing of the day, dashed into the lead and showed the way around the far turn, coming into the long stretch with a clear lead. At this point Arctic Fox came upsideways with him and now took place the most exciting finish of the day. Whips were liberally applied, and Ferd seemed to bump the game little grey quite a bit. Arctic Fox never gave in and stayed on to be only beaten a head. This performance proved him to be one of the most consistent flat horses running at the Hunt Meetings. To give Ferd one pound for a head beating is very good form indeed.

Maryador finished third, but was disqualified for taking the wrong course.

So ended a most pleasant race meeting, for which much credit is due to the entire committee.

Morning Program of Trader Point Trials Devoted To Children

The Annual Traders Point Hunter Trials were held Sat., Oct. 20, on the hunter trials course on the property of Burford Danner, at Zionsville, Ind. It was a perfect day with the sun shining and a cool breeze blowing. The course is in a beautiful setting with a hill making a natural grandstand. There is a creek winding through it and a small wooded area at one end, so that they vary their course for each class making it more interesting for both riders and spectators.

The morning was devoted to the children. A 9-year-old and under class was open to children on lead-line or not. There were only two out of 7 that had to be led. The youngest was John Brant, III, who rode his small pony Frosty, all alone. Johnny is only three and was decked out complete with jodhpurs, riding coat, hunt cap, stock and small hunting whip. He was the people's choice without a doubt. However, all received blue ribbons.

The youngest rider in the 12-year-old and under class was on the largest horse, an old favorite of many people in the Indianapolis area, named Sage King. Max Bonham has taught more people to jump and hunt on this old gray horse than you could imagine. The horse must be about 20 now. Max recently gave him to the Joseph Barr's to use for their children. Bonnie, age 8, was the one riding him. She is a cute sight to see, getting the 17.0 hand horse on his right leads. She also hunts him with the junior hunt, and placed 4th in this class with him. Elise Noonan won the class also the horsemanship over jumps.

Everyone took time out to eat their picnic lunches before the old-timers class. It is always a favorite. One has to be 50 or over to be eligible. Mr. Willis E. Kuhn, the owner of Folly Farms, on his ex-steeple-chaser, Gallant Fight, came around with a lovely go to win.

The Corinthian class was open only to men. This was a new idea to make the men get out and work instead of the women who have ladies classes all of the time. Appointments were judged also. Mr. John Miller on Sunset Road took the blue. Sunset may be remembered from his show ring days of years past. He is retired to hunting now, and at fourteen he still proved that he can put in a good performance.

Mrs. Louis Schwitzer, Jr. on her Little Storm won the main event of the day, the working hunter challenge Trophy, and the program ended with the hunt team class in which eight teams competed.

Banshee Wins Hunter Event At Genesee Valley Hunter Trials

Over 500 people watched the annual hunter trials sponsored by the Genesee Valley Hunt, Oct. 21. The weather was perfect and the course is really an excellent one and a good test of what a real hunting horse should be able to do. The judges had a tough job as there was a big entry of good moving horses.

The biggest class was the middle and heavyweight hunters. The performances were good with very few horses being eliminated because of refusals. Banshee, owned by Donald L. Miller won this event.

The suitable to become class was somewhat of a disappointment as there were fewer horses in it than there have been in other years. After all the Genesee Valley is loaded with young horses and this was a good chance to show them.

One doesn't associate Omaha with hunters, but Mr. David Forman's Investigator by Omaha is really going so well and winning a number of blues for her first season in the show ring. Lucky Omen and Which Mate were well represented too.

It was definitely encouraging to see that there were many more horses and certainly many more spectators at this hunter trial than there has been in quite a few years.

here. There just ain't no quarter horse stud like Ariel, never has been—never will be. That's why I figured I had to git this little ole colt. He's the last o' the line. After that, if he breaks and trains well, I'll run him short a piece, and win a few races, then he'll go to stud an' I'll have an Ariel stallion that'll make folks respect me out in Texas. Yes, Sir!"

This garrulous outburst quite flooded me, and for the first time in our one sided relationship, I was the one unable to reply. It was plain to see that he was deadly serious in both his aim and ambition. It was not so much what he said as the emphasis and earnestness of how he said it. I had the impression that if I ventured a contrary opinion, he might drill me on the spot.

He asked me to hold the colt a mite while he went and fetched his car. When he drove up it was in a ramshackle '47 Pontiac, to which was attached a small canvas trailer, the interior of which was far more comfortable than the auto that pulled it. We had quite a time persuading his colt to back into it. Hip No. 267 had never been crossed tied in its life and took a very dim view of this one-horse contraption in which it was expected to travel 2,000 odd miles. Finally, the job was completed and the kid from Texas actually grinned and pulled a thin roll of bills out of his pants pocket. For one awful moment I thought he was going to tip me, but he just stood there and carefully counted them.

"Forty-seven dollars and fifty-three cents" he said finally, "Do you reckon that'll get me home to Crowell, partner?"

I said I wasn't sure, but it would at least get him to the Texas border and from there on he could doubtless travel on the cuff. He nodded quite seriously, shook hands, and climbed into the jallory. I stood on the loading ramp watching, and as the car and trailer pulled slowly away, Hip No. 267 threw its head into the air and nickered loud and long.

The last of the Ariels was on its way to the Lone Star State. Fama Semper Vivat.

spec, are Hall of Fame ($224,995) and the California handicapper, Moonrush. Hall of Fame, which also has won six stakes this year, could not hold Counterpoint's stretch run, but he did put his stable in front of Calumet Farm with second money. Greentree's total now is $615,342, against $605,380 for Calumet. This is a precarious lead, for Calumet will have six days or so of racing at Santa Anita before the close of the year, and Greentree's opportunities are about ended. A few of the Greentree horses, including Guillotine, are going to California, and maybe Guillotine, which turned back Calumet's Theory in the Futurity, can help hold honors for his stable.

A 2-year-old filly of distinguished connections appeared for the first time on November 2, and won like the good thing which she apparently was. This was C. T. Chenery's Satsuma, which is by Bossuet—Hildene, and thus a half-sister to Hill Prince and Mangohick. Though it was her first start she was made a strong second choice, and she won ridden out, through the mud, by a length and a half. As nearly as one could tell she didn't beat much, but it was at least a promising beginning.

Up to now, the only horse to win the Futurity was the California handicapper, Moonrush. Breeding Notes

Albatross, The Cinderella Horse, Is Retired After 209 Starts and $60,000

Karl Koontz

If one can put any faith in the old saying, "a man is known by the company he keeps", then it would be a most difficult job to classify Albatross as to rank. In a manner of speaking he moved in a circle of acquaintances from the highest society of Park Avenue to the lowest corner bar of The Bowery.

Albatross a chestnut son of Mate—Lull, by *Bull Dog, was foaled at Coldstream Stud on April 29, 1939. He was to be sent to the Saratoga Sales along with the other Coldstream offerings but before they were shipped he became ill and was not sent.

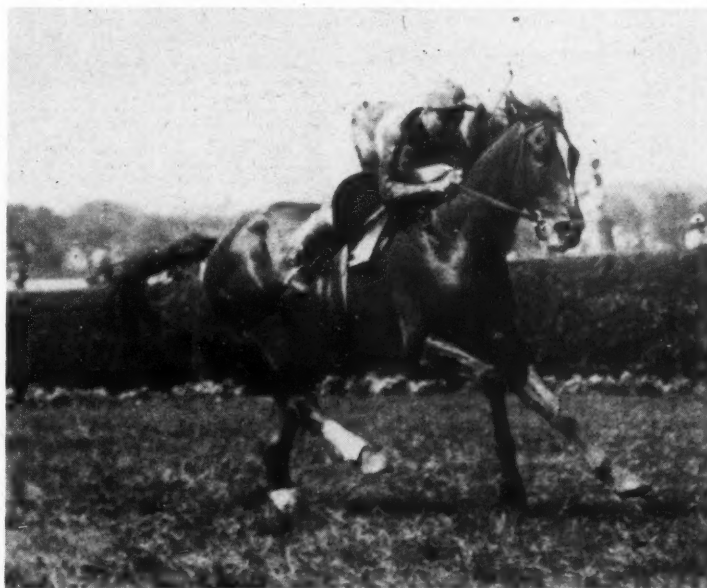

When racing started the following season, he was in Florida in training for the Coldstream Stable. His training progressed satisfactorily and when his name appeared in the program the bettors sent him away the even money favorite. Albatross won easily, running the three furlongs distance over a sloppy track in :33 4-5 seconds. That same night (January 25), Lull, dam of Albatross, gave birth to a bay filly by Chance Sun, two weeks ahead of schedule.

Let's part the thread of the story and inject a comment. Two seasons ago when a certain 2-year-old colt was sweeping a lot of early season honors before him, a writer of renown said that although this colt had shown much he might be another Albatross, only time would tell. Upon looking over the record of this Mate—Lull gelding, the writers words have particular meaning. For after his first race it was said by one of the leading periodicals of the time "It was a smart performance and some observers thought him to be the best 2-year-old to carry silks so far at the meeting." In his next start, Albatross again won in allowance company and the following was noted: "Albatross has been mentioned as one of the smartest 2-year-olds to show this year (1941), and he gave a five length beating to his field."

After these two allowance races, he was pointed for the Miami Jockey Club Dinner Stakes. Albatross carrying 122 pounds and the Canary yellow, maroon sash and cap of Coldstream went off favorite at 1 to 4. At the break he went to the front and won as a 1 to 4 shot should. His victory was reported thusly: "... galloped a quarter in :22 flat and was pricking his ears at the end of three furlongs in :33 2-5.... Albatross' time was only 2-5 slower than the track record of :33 and few in attendance doubted he could have at least equaled the mark had Irving Anderson found it necessary.... never left the result in doubt, breaking like a quarter horse, he was on the lead and moving away in a dozen strides, with Anderson taking him under hold."

So when it came time to pick a favorite for the Hialeah Juvenile Stakes, Albatross was it. In the race itself, Albatross had a rough time, but nevertheless won in good form. A. T. Simmons' Eternal Bull was away even faster than Albatross and he swerved into the favorite just after the start, bothered him again as the field went onto the main track. But the son of Mate, when roused with the whip in the last eighth, drew steadily away and won by 3-4 of a length. This was the first time that another horse had been lapped on him at the finish. This last race "definitely established Albatross as the leading development of the Florida season."

His first northern start was in the Futurity. At the start he went right to the top, but could not lose Some Chance, and after three furlongs Some Chance took over. On the turn Some Chance went wide carrying out Albatross and Amphitheatre, and Sun Again came through the opening to win. Albatross was squeezed back and finished 7th. Then the Miles Standish 'Cap proved too much, and he finished 6th. In all as a 2-year-old Albatross had started six times and won four, and been unplaced on two occasions.

In his first start the next year at Hialeah, he was not the Albatross of the previous year, finishing dead last. When next he faced the starter he was in a race for $5,000 claimers. Although picking up a number of placings he did not get any brackets, and a number of starts later he was running for $3,500 claiming price at Tropical Park.

Then at Narragansett, still sporting the silks of his breeder, he won for $2,200. Then a few more wins among the claimers, and he was picked up by G. Felkner for $2,500.

For Felkner he won three races including the Narragansett Claiming Stakes, and a third in the Thanksgiving 'Cap to Brownie, plus other minor awards in lesser company.

Then on October 12, Albatross redeemed himself and in the 11th running of the Interborough 'Cap at Jamaica, 3-4 mile, he went into command as the gates sprang open, and under pressure held on gamely to the end. He was beaten by Eire, which had a nose on Doublerab, after numerous attempts all unfruitful, he started carrying tack for Victor Emanuel.

1949, at 5, found Albatross still keeping claiming company, and picking up enough to pay the feed bill. Then on July 25, he was haltered by J. M. Marshall for a price of $3,000 at Jamaica. He raced the rest of that year, and at 6, 7 and 8, either in the name of J. M. or his wife. For them he did many things. He was a many times winner in $5,000 claimers, a winner over hurdles (Duettiste Purse, 1 1-2 miles, allowance; Sir Wooster Purse, allowance, over Flying Wing, Binder, Persepolis, Knight's Armour, and Fleet Fox.)

Then off to gay Mexico, where he was a consistent winner in allowance purse events, usually at the distance of 5 1-2 furlongs. Then back into the states in the spring for New York racing. From the New York tracks he journeyed down to Bel Air, where he ran third in a 2-mile steeplechase on July 29. Then on August 2, in a 5-8 mile flat allowance race (at Bel Air) he romped home in 1:00 1-5 to win and stagger the bookies.

Then Saratoga again, to finish 4th over hurdles; on to Narragansett, where he lost the Marshalls, being claimed out of a 3-4 mile dash by A. J. Lacoste for $2,500. He won several like events for his new owner and at the age of 8 made his first start at Tropical Park, running third in $4,000 company. On January 10, D. Zakoor haltered him for $3,000, but before Albatross could get acquainted with his owner, Harvey Cantor grabbed him for $3,000 at Gulfstream.

Then Albatross made another swift change, which seemed to be his specialty, going from the south on the flat to the north over hurdles, winning a 1 1-2 mile claiming hurdle event. After this he won two claimers and one allowance over hurdles, and wound up with a third in the Amagansett Hurdle 'Cap to Darjeeling.

At 9 he was still racing, although more unsuccessfully, for Cantor's green, white cross sashes, green sleeves, gold hoops, green cap, and in his last race for Cantor, finished 3rd in a field of $4,500 claimers at Aqueduct.

On December 3, he appeared in the Charles Town program under the sponsorship of L. A. Hancock, who purchased the aged gelding privately for $3,100. For Hancock he was a winner every year, as indeed he was every year of his life, with the exception of 1951.

Now at the age of 12, Albatross has been retired. His new owner Miss Nancy O'Farrell has big plans mapped out for the chestnut gelding and herself in the hunt field and possibly in the show ring. So after ten straight seasons of racing in which he made a total of 209 starts (both on the flat and over brush and hurdles) and earned over $60,000, a holiday has been declared for Albatross. The miracle of it all is the fact that he is retiring as sound as the day he was foaled.

small pony honors, each having 12 points. Hacking in front of the judges, Quiz Kid received the nod.

Among the large ponies, Master Sydney Gadd III and his Craven's Raven turned in an almost perfect score to earn 18 1-2 points and the tri-color. Reserve with 7 points was Miss Penny Armstrong's Pinocchio which was ridden by Master Russell Walther, Jr.

Spectators enjoyed the large number of ponies showing and the tiny mites on their tiny ponies drew quite a bit of applause. Even though the jumps were slightly higher than some of the ponies in the team event, the small pony teams finally made it around the course.

The stirring music of the First Army Band led the international military teams when Major General Karl F. Hausauer, Commanding General of the New York National Guard, received the salute.

The show was over and ringmaster Craven was the lone figure in the huge ring as he sounded "Taps".

SHOW CIRCUITS

American Royal

American Royal week in Kansas City was as gay as ever despite the flood waters which swept through the K. C. industrial section in July. With 25 feet of flood water and mud milling around in the stable area plans for a Royal looked pretty grim. But by the time horses started to fill up the stalls the restoration was a miracle. Everything was put back in A-1 order and plus a good scrubbing and gallons of paint the interior looked brighter than it had in years. The parties responsible for this wonderful cleanup should certainly be congratulated.

Mrs. W. E. Munk's Combination edged out Lady Gordon for the conformation title by taking a 2nd in the stake and the blue in the preliminary. It was a close race all week and into the stake Lady Gordon had the lead and it looked like she might hold on to it being as consistent as she is. It was only after the preliminary that the victory for Combination and the reserve for the mare was set.

Robert Baskowitz' Pappy and Si Jayne's The Owl split up the hunter and jumper stake honors with good goes in their respective classes.

Gray Horse Farm Hunter and Jumper

The 4th annual Gray Horse Farm Hunter and Jumper Show, saw two newcomers break into the championship ranks. In the conformation hunter division Brenda, owned by Mrs. H. H. Phillips of San Antonio, and ridden by Maide Barnhart took every championship but one to win her first championship in the 2nd outing of her show career.

The other newcomer to the championship circle was Benbrook, which with his owner up, Lt. Col. T. J. Harrell of Ft. Worth, took three out of five classes in the working hunter division.

Every junior class at the show had at least 20 entries and the high scorer in these classes was Merrick Coates on her own Southern Cross. A difficult equitation class for juniors in which each rider showed individually over a prescribed routine, was won by Sue Cocke of Austin. Sue was just about the smallest rider in the show, which in a short space of four years has more than doubled the number of horses exhibited. The first show saw 32 hunter and jumpers in action, while this year's show brought out 70.

"The winnah!"

Alex Calvert had the approval of the exhibitors as doing an admirable job of tying the ribbons. Although there was not an over abundance of stock in the conformation division, the jumper and working classes were well filled. The competition was keen and one could never count on winning a class until he had the blue in his pocket. All the horses seemed fairly consistent in their performances, but there were some—Mrs. Bunting's Hi Way 40, shown by Bob Egan, Si Jayne's Lady Gordon and Red Bird, ridden by Dorothy McCloud and Suzanne Norton's Three Feathers—that were outstanding in their consistency.

Miss Norton a newcomer to the Royal, jumped her little bay horse right into the championship by winning 3 classes. Hi Way 40 made a good bid for top honors but settled for the reserve with several good classes to his credit. Si Jayne had the working hunter tri-colors sewed up before the stake, but his 1-2 verdict with Red Bird and Lucky Strike in the stretch run made the gap even larger. Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Bitler's The Plainsman, shown by Mrs. George Bunting made a challenge for the top honors by winning the colorful working appointment class early in the week.

Chicago Foxhound Show

Longmeadow's Bellman Receives American Championship Award From Mr. and Mrs. Foster

Denison Hull

At about ten o'clock on Sunday, October 21, a few spectators began to gather around the judging ring of the Chicago Hound Show, set on the top of a wooded knoll across the road from the stables and kennels of the Mill Creek Hunt; the judges, Mr. and Mrs. S. Prentice Porter, former masters of the Cobler, arrived; hounds were led into the ring by hunt servants in their clean white kennel coats; and the show began. The day was ideal, be-hounds, the Mill Creek bred couple, Julius '51 and Jupiter '51, litter mates, were the winners. The Longmeadow started off again with a win in the class for unentered bitches with Barbara, another of the get of Orange County General '49, but the Mill Creek came out ahead in the couple class. The show looked like a duel between Longmeadow and Mill Creek. The Oak Brook, however, began to enter the contest when their home bred bitch Twinkle '48 of the Oak Brook, and third to Seth Foster Bartlett, Joint-Master of the Milwaukee. Probably the most enthusiastic part of the audience of this event were the hounds, who responded magnificently to the horns.

The Challenge Trophy, presented by the American Foxhound Club, for the best American hound of the show, was won for a second time by the Longmeadow, but this time by a hound of their own breeding, an unentered doghound named Bellman, whose litter mate, a bitch, was Reserve.

The Pack Class was held on a green field of alfalfa to the north of the show ring, an ideal place not only because it set off the packs to great advantage, but because a convenient barbed wire fence kept the spectators, who by this time were very numerous, from crowding out on to the field. There were three American packs shown, the Longmeadow, the Mill Creek, and the Oak Brook, the first tan and white, and the latter two black and white. First place went to the Oak Brook whose levelness, conformation, and good manners were outstanding, and the Mill Creek, with equally good manners took a well deserved second. Arthur Payne, Huntsman of the Oak Brook, got a well deserved hand when he was presented with the Challenge Trophy given by the Masters of Foxhounds Association.

The most entertaining event of the day was the Hound Race, in which six entries, two each from the Mill Creek, the Milwaukee and the Oak Brook ran a two mile drag, run-not only more numerous, but very much more interested. Last year they came in a somewhat skeptical state of mind; this year they came because they were interested. They knew what it was all about. The exhibitors took the affair in a much more serious way, too, and the interest in breeding was noticeably greater. The best evidence lies in the fact that far fewer hounds were shown that had been bred and entered by someone other than the exhibitors. This year's show was the result of a year's attention to breeding, and another year should show even better results. Exhibitors and spectators alike were increasingly aware that you cannot hunt without hounds, and that the better the hounds the better the hunt. The Midwest is going to do something about it, and there is no doubt that the results will bear watching.

ing mild and sunny, neither too hot nor too cold, and the trees surrounding the show ring provided shade for spectators as well as for hounds.

The first three classes gave the impression that the show might be a walkaway for Longmeadow, whose Orange County General '49, champion American hound of last year's show won the class for entered doghounds, while his get, bred by the Longmeadow, won the classes for both the singles and the couples of unentered doghounds. However, in the class for couples of entered dog-won the class for brood bitches, with Mill Creek hounds taking second and third.

After lunch came the classes for Cross Bred hounds, the morning having been devoted entirely to American hounds. In this division the Oak Brook scored with their Trumpet '46, who was named Champion Cross Bred hound, with a Milwaukee bitch, Wildflower '51, Reserve.

The crowd around the ring had been growing larger and larger as the show progressed, and was thick by the time the Horn Blowing Contest was held. The contestants in this event stood in a row, and at the command of the judges took turns blowing the calls. First prize, a copy of Hunting by Ear, presented by Sydney R. Smith, was won by Aidan Regan, Whipper-In of the Fox River Valley Hunt, with second going to Ted Mohlman, Joint-Master ning completely out of sight of the spectators, who were left to wonder if the hounds would ever find their way around the course, for the sun was strong, there was a good stiff breeze, scent was poor, and the drag was laid lightly to test the noses of the hounds. Somewhere along the course the Milwaukee hounds, previous winners, were lost, and the finish of the race was an exciting dash down the alfalfa field, with the two Mill Creek hounds coming in first and second, and an Oak Brook hound third. Confusion was avoided in identifying the hounds by large numbers painted on their sides in washable colors, white being used on the dark hounds, and black on the light ones.

The final event was brief but sweet to the winners, a cash prize going to Bob Breen, Huntsman of the Longmeadow for the greatest number of points won, and a second prize going to the Mill Creek Huntsman, Carey Rogers.

There were approximately the same number of hounds entered in this show as in last year's, and the same hunts represented, but it was noticeable that the spectators were

We now have to dispose of: 4 couples, 1946 to 1950 entry, and 3 1/2 of 1951 entry, besides 7 couples of whelps. Six of these last are by two top Brocklesby sires, imported in 1950 and look very promising.

FRANKSTOWN HUNT CLUB*

Drawer 32,
Altoona,
Pennsylvania.
Established 1933.
Recognized 1938.

The Frankstown Hunt club officially opened their hunting season for 1951 on Sunday, October 7th, in a down-pour of rain. Huntsman-Master Lenehan's spirits, not being dampened by the elements, moved from kennels with eight couple of the Frankstown hounds with a small field of dauntless riders.

The meet was on Mitchell's Farm in Cross Keys and after the three mile hack to the fixture, the rain had stopped, making conditions overhead as well as underfoot delightful for a good day.

Hounds drew the Mitchell pasture lands and found one mile east of Duncansville and drove hard through the big jumping Cross Keys country and checked at Goodfellows. Here we were again greeted by a down-pour but the hardy souls persisted and despite the weather, enjoyed a 25 minute point to the O'Rourke Farm. The terrific pace and bad weather began to take its toll of some of the horses and riders, and here a portion of the very small field withdrew to hack their way homeward.

Danny Lenehan then drew the pasture land on Cassidy's Farm which resulted in the third find and a very fine run to the Figart Woods. It was then decided to call it a day and hounds and horses moved homeward.

As is the Frankstown custom, a delicious breakfast was served at the Hunt Club to the members and their families. This breakfast celebration served as a fine opportunity for the membership of the Frankstown to pay honor to the Vipond boys, whose great horse "Friese" had won the Gold Cup Steeplechase at Rolling Rock. Toasts and speeches followed in profusion and thus ended a glorious day which promises the beginning of a glorious season of sport for the Frankstown.

Thursday, October 11, the Frankstown hounds and a field of 12 left kennels at 3 p. m., with the Huntsman-Master Lenehan in charge.

Dick Frank and Dr. Glover acted as whips and the hill country opposite the Cassidy barn was the first draw. Hounds immediately found and gave strong tongue and a hard run to the water tower in the rear of the County Home. They were then moved cross country to the shooting lodge flats where another find developed into a hard one hours run.

It is most encouraging to have been like your scribe, Dr. Glover, Paul Vipond, the like and age, to have so many new young riders as are joining our field this season. The Lenehan children gave a good account of themselves on all sizes, shapes and descriptions of mounts. Master Mike Lenehan gives an especially good account of himself on his pony, Mickey.

The crisp fall day was a glorious one for being afield. Those Frankstowners who do not join us are the losers.

Sunday, October 14, Frankstown hounds met today at the Forsht Farm with a field of 22 riders. Huntsman-Master Lenehan delivered 12 couple of hounds to the meet where Joint-Master Stormer delivered a short word of welcome to the colorful turnout on this beautiful morning.

Hounds were cast here at Forsht's and drove a hard line to the top of the Catfish ridge country. Due to the heat of the bright fall morning, here was a most welcome check. From here, we moved in a westwardly direction and hounds were cast in a woodland where the pack split and considerable time was spent by Huntsman Lenehan and Whips Dr. Glover and Dick Frank in again placing them on a line. From here, they drove hard through the Guyer, Mathews, Mattern and Hartsock farms where the heat had taken sufficient toll to call it quits.

It was again delightful to have Fred Stormer's son, Dan Lenehan's son and daughters and Barbara McCann join us. We moved to the club house where the hosts for a hunt breakfast were Dr. and Mrs. McCann and Mr. and Mrs. Staska.

Thursday, October 18th. Fifteen members of the Frankstown met today at the kennels and had good sport in our home country. The weather continues so hot and dry that hound and horse work are both very difficult.

A nice sized field followed the 12 couples of hounds splendidly handled by Danny Lenehan and Dick Frank.

Sunday morning, October 21st, Frankstown hounds met at the kennels and in the absence of Danny Lenehan, hounds were hunted by Ned Maloy.

A field of twenty people met at the kennels and along with M. F. H. Stormer, we moved to the Cross Keys country. Hounds were cast in the Figart woodland, where they found immediately and were away with great music over the big timber jumps of this section of our country. Due to the hot dry weather the scent was sketchy but provided interesting hound work and the field greatly enjoyed this opportunity to watch the care with which hounds hunted out of line.

Our good friend and youngest rider, Mike Lenehan, met with misfortune at the beginning of our day when his miniature hunter resented the puffing of a passing locomotive. Fortunately, Mike had only a short trip to the ground and was soon back in his saddle with the assistance of his hunting friend, Mr. Bill.

Hounds, after their first run, checked on the Cassidy farm and were then roaded to O'Rourke's and sketchy running followed for the next hour. At a check on the Mitchell farm, M. F. H. Stormer gave the welcome permission to go kennelward. A strange huntsman being of no advantage to the hounds wishes to apologize for indifferent sport.

The field was met at the Club house by the Gables and Isenbergs, who served a delicious hunt breakfast to a large and gay group.

Thursday, October 25th, hounds met at the Frankstown kennels and moved away with substitute huntsman Ned Maloy at 3:30. There was a field of fifteen loyal and regular followers who enjoyed good sport in the home country following the seven couples of cross breeds.

M. F. H. Stormer and Lenehan were both attending the Harrisburg Horse Show and the same strange huntsman had a new master added to provide sport for the day. Good fun under adverse conditions.

Munnings Hunting Series Expresses Feeling For 'Chase

The accuracy and apparent ease of Sir Alfred Munnings' equine paintings is a never ending source of pleasure to horsemen interested in the reproduction of their sport. In no field does the famous British artist exhibit his genius better than in that of foxhunting. The picture on the cover this week is the first of a series of six oils which he did depicting hunting. Many foxhunting series were done in the 18th and 19th centuries by Alken, Ferneley, Sartorius and others, but Munnings with all of his painting, completed but one hunting series for the 20th century.

Through the courtesy of E. J. Rousuck, The Chronicle will publish all six of these paintings this fall. This initial picture shows hounds moving into covert at the signal from their huntsman. How naturally and easily this picture gives the feel of the hunt! The horses are alert, keen to detect the first whimper which will mean the excitement of a run. The whip whom Peter Beckford writes is more important than a good huntsman follows close until hounds spread out. The care with which the huntsman moves in with his hounds speaks volumes for the intrinsic feeling Munnings had for the art of foxhunting.

Many artists can paint good pictures of horses both in action and posed but very few can bring foxhounds to life as these hounds live while slipping into their covert. The light and shade is there, the quick flash of their tri-colored hides moving among the leaves, the gaiety of the waving sterna, the alertness, the thrusting nose and the uplifted paw. Above all one can sense if not hear the pad, pad, pad of hounds feet among the bright autumn leaves. It is just as if the artist had cried, "This is November, it's time to go hunting." He did not say it, he painted it and his feeling for the sport is there indelibly expressed on his canvas.

Harrison

The 26th Harrison Horse Show, for amateurs only, provided sharp competition in two main groups, working hunters and saddle horses. The majority of the almost 400 entries were children, who provided the usual pre-Garden, last-minute flurry for final medals. Two of the youngsters who triumphantly won their 4th medals and so became eligible for the Garden were Miss Jill Diner and Miss Judy Palmer.

In the working hunter division, highest honors fell to Mrs. Robert Schmid's Thoroughbred Chickstraw, which ably earned his second local championship with 14 1-2 points. H. J. Lamude's Imputar was reserve with 10 1-2 points. Imputar was ridden by Ned Hancock. In addition, Ned turned in another of his usual smooth performances to snaffle the hunter seat championship ahead of his consistent and persistent rival, Miss Joan Parker.

For the first time, the point-winning stable at this show was the host itself, Kentucky.

A very small open hunter group was dominated by youthful Sidney Baumann. He won the tri-color with Lad O'War and also reserve with Woodstock, both from the Shannon Stables.

Liesse Hunt Annual

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon G. Cardy were the most successful exhibitors at the Liesse Hunt Annual Horse Show. Their entries won 6 firsts before being withdrawn to allow more extensive distribution of prizes. Miss Helen Ferguson rode the Cardy horses to 4 victories. One of the best green hunters to appear in Canada was the stable's new Ksar d'Esprit which won his class with Tom Hyland up.

It was nice to see Mrs. Douglas Cleland and Pennant Parade back again riding. Mrs. Cleland, the former Marion Hart, was the wife of the well known rider, Douglas Cleland, who died suddenly last year.

In the large entry of the jumping stake, Lac des Loups, owned by the H. J. O'Connells and ridden by Percy Knott, gave an outstanding performance to nose out Plouffe Riding Academy's Bobby for 1st.

Los Angeles International

The First International Horse Show to be held in Los Angeles turned out to be one of the best shows that has been held here for many, many years, both from the standpoint of the exhibitor and the management, for it was not only pleasant but profitable, thereby containing two of the most important elements that go to make up a Horse Show.

The Pan Pacific Auditorium was packed to capacity almost every night, and the participation of the Presidential Military Jumping Team of Mexico added a great deal of color to the many colorful events.

Looking back on the Show, it is difficult to state which was the best class, but from the standpoint of this observer and the public, the blue ribbon in this division must go to the jumpers knock-down-and-out class. I believe that this was one of the finest show ring events that I have ever witnessed. The class was composed of over twenty horses. On the first go there were six clean performances, and it required many jump-offs before the final winners were decided. There were 3 obstacles in the ring. On the last jump-off one of the fences was 6'-2", two were 5'-11", and the balance were 5' or better. The riders in the final jump-off had jumped 40 fences. Believe me, the horses that won the ribbons in this class earned their oats for some time to come. The blue ribbon went to Tamarack, owned by Howard Gass and ridden by Mrs. Ellen Lincoln; 2nd to Balbriggan, owned by the Barbara Worth Stables and ridden by Mrs. Barbara Worth Dodge; 3rd went to the little horse, Fiddlesticks, owned and ridden by Miss Margaret Sullivan, a young lady of 18, who came as near as anyone could come to winning, although she fell on the 5th jump-off. The 4th ribbon went to Amigo, owned and ridden by Miss Margaret Stewart, and the 5th was garnered by Good News, owned and ridden by one of the best open riders in the country, Mr. Clyde Kennedy.

The fact that space will not allow full coverage of the other classes does not in any way detract from their excellence, and it is thought that Los Angeles is now on its way to having one of the best shows in the country in the future.

The show was outstandingly judged by Mr. Jack Prestage of Boyce, Virginia.

New Brunswick

The New Brunswick Horse Show was held at beautiful Johnson Park. The outside course, held around a small lake, was very picturesque. However, the only drawback was the construction of the post and rail fences which came down much too easily. This resulted in their being only one or two rounds in a class without a knock down.

On top in the working hunters was owner-rider Miss Ruth Van Sriver on Bashful Boy. This well mannered gelding was the only horse to win more than one class in this division. In reserve position was E. Emberger's Reno Blaze which won the stake with the only round without a rail down.

The three outstanding jumpers of the show were R. Dean Messner's My Folly, Arthur M. Nardin's Trader Bedford and Prince River, owned by Fred Blum. The latter, ridden by John Bell, acquired 11 points and was just behind the other two horses which tied for the tri-color with 12 points each. In the jump off, My Folly had 2 faults to the 5 faults of Sonny Brooks on Trader Bedford. Tommy Hennessy, who rode My Folly throughout the show, does an excellent job of handling this honest mare. He climaxed his winnings by riding her to the blue in the bareback jumping and also placing 2nd with his own Sinbad.

Miss Carol Jean Kruse had a double victory, winning both horsemanship championships. Reserve in the hunter seat division was Miss Joan Parker.

NATIONAL SCENE

Friday night at the hunt ball the small 5-month-old pony by Trouble again came into the spotlight. Perhaps there isn't another such small individual working for the U. S. Equestrian Team, Inc. with more success. Having been raffled off at the Trinity Horse Show in Virginia, her new owner gave her to the team to be raffled again at The Pennsylvania National. Again the new owner returned her to the team and she made the trip to New York. Auctioned off at the hunt ball, she was sold for $1,600. . . . Thursday morning C. M. Greer sat at ringside while Stewart Lanahan rode his Pike's Peak to annex the blue in The Jockey Club Cup class. This blue matched very well the one which Mr. Greer won in this class in 1926, the first year The National Horse Show was held at Madison Square Garden. That year he rode Mrs. Greer's Step Aside to enter the winner's circle. . . . It would be fine if it were possible to line up all of the out of state horsemen so that one could see and meet them all. The Charles Zimmermans and Miss Sue Penn from Texas were on hand as were Clyde Burke and Dana Durand from Kansas. . . . From the steeplechasing ranks, Stephen C. Clark, Jr., G. H. "Pete" Bostwick, E. H. "Tiger" Bennett and Raymond Woolfe and family took time out to watch from ringside. . . . Grover Stephens, former amateur rider over timber and brush, arrived from Fort Riley to watch Grey Fox, the horse which he rode during the tryouts. Billy Steinkraus was in the irons. . . . The horses were lined up following the young hunter stake and the judges asked the various ones to trot out. Mrs. Mary Barbin and Top Over literally took over as she displayed her well known "Hackney trot" in showing the 3-year-old, while the horses in line switched ends with great rapidity. . . . When the dirt was removed from the ring at Madison Square Garden, it was too late to find out whether Gordon Wright pressed his claim. He purchased a small portion one morning when he came a cropper on Speakeasy. . . . Billy Steinkraus, who did such a top job with Grey Fox to annex the jumper tricolor at The Pennsylvania National, was on the casualty list at The National. Walking down the ramp to the stable area, he slipped, fell and badly sprained his ankle, necessitating his removal to the hospital for an x-ray.

NO SALE

During the green hunter stake on Friday morning at The National Horse Show, two gentlemen were very much interested in the entries. One of them observed that he liked a certain gelding. Asked if he was going to purchase it, his quick reply was, "Oh no! That's one of those Virginia horses and they bring a horse up here one year, sell it to you and come back the next year with another horse and beat you!"

CANADIAN TEAM

A Canadian Equestrian Team made up of W. R. Ballard, Captain, Lt. Col. Charles Baker, Jr. and Tom Gayford was really in its stride this year. At previous shows the Canadian team had always been a sporting group as had luck dogged its tracks and its performances kept falling just short of winning rounds. This time it is a different story and the team this year has really hit its stride. The men on the team deserve a great deal of credit. There has been no organization behind them; they are all three businessmen and they are showing at the Pennsylvania National, The National and The Royal Winter Fair so that their country will be represented. Each one had to take time off from work and even though their luck faded a bit so that they have been limited to only 4 horses, still they have come through with flying colors. The 4 horses are Reject, Star Clift, Anchors Aweigh and Skip Across. It has been erroneously reported that Skip Across was sent to Mexico to be schooled. These horses have been in Canada all of the time with the exception of the days when they were shown in the States. With such performances in their wake this year, it is unfortunate that these gentlemen won't be on hand to represent their country at the Olympic Games next year. However, none of them can take the necessary time to prepare for the trip and the all important question of enough horses can not be provided for.

PORTRAIT OF A HOUND. This Walker hound is ready for the opening of the 1951-52 season with Mrs. Parker Poe's private pack in Harrodsburg, Ky. (Marshall Hawkins Photo)

IT WAS RAINING

Apparently it is impossible to find it raining harder than it does when one comes out of Madison Square Garden to face the elements with no raincoat. Faced with this Friday night, two ladies solved the problem by borrowing one of Green Dune Farm's rain sheets. One lady took over the lead position of the tandem, the other one getting completely under where she couldn't see out. The flight to the hotel was on. Passing a horse van, one of the drivers was heard to query, "Which end do we load first?" Came the curb and the leader yelled, "Curb". The street was next and midway the flight was suddenly set at a faster tempo—a cab was coming. Then, "Curb" and the sidewalk had been accomplished. In front of the hotel the leader came out from under the sheet, leaving the "wheel horse" completely shrouded. A very kind gentleman asked, "What's under that?" "Oh, just a girl". He helped remove the rain sheet, tipped his hat and disappeared in the rain. Having served its purpose, the rain sheet was neatly folded and was returned to the Green Dune Farm's tack box the next morning minus its occupants.

RETIRED

Missing from the line-up of the Mexican Army Team is the 22-year-old chestnut gelding, Resorte. This amazing little horse was shown at The National Horse Show by Col. Humberto Mariles for the first time in 1939. He went on to win 67 blue ribbons in international competition before his retirement. He is now at Col. Mariles' stable, living the life of a pensioner. With the exception of the veteran 14-year-old Arete, the Mexican team horses this year are between 5 and 7 years old. Taking over the original Resorte's spot is Resorte II, a 5-year-old which is ridden by Capt. Victor Carrillo. Also on the team is Chihuahua II, replacing his now retired 19-year-old namesake.

TEAM GIFT

This fall at the Warrenton Horse Show chances were sold on a variety of prizes, including a 5-month-old Welsh weanling pony by Trouble. The drawing was at the Trinity Horse Show—the winner—Arthur Schleifman. All exhibitors on the eastern circuit know Arthur, the pitchman, and his huckster's shout of, "Horse show souvenirs. Get your horse show souvenirs." After winning the pony, he gave the youngster to the U. S. Equestrian Team to be re-raffed. At the Pennsylvania National Horse Show Arthur was again on hand and this time his line included books of tickets on the pony weanling. Arthur's wonderful gesture and salesmanship plus Arthur McCashin's exhibition of the pony mite, resulted in a tidy sum being added to the U. S. Equestrian Team funds.

Mr. McCashin led the pony into the ring at various times during the show, and on Wednesday night when Mr. McCashin on Totilla won the jump-off against Col. Humberto Mariles and Arete to give the U. S. Equestrian Team a leg on the International Individual Jumping Championship and the huge Governor's Challenge trophy, he went out of the ring carrying his winnings only to be met at the gate by the pony, waiting to be led into the ring.

So weighted down with the trophy in one hand and leading the pony with the other, back went the popular U. S. Equestrian Team member for another tour of the ring.

There was no question as to whether it was the trophy or pony being raffled. It marked a great accomplishment for the U. S. Team as the Mexican Army Team already had two legs on that trophy.

HORSE TRADING

W. U. Parrish of the Parrish Stables in Houston, Tex., sold one of his top jumpers, Miss Penny Daniels, also, of Houston, is now the proud owner of Matador, the winner of the knock-down-and-out class this year at Pin Oaks, at 5'-6". Mr. Parrish took in Penny's horse Sunnybrook on the deal.

W. P. Hobby, Jr. of Houston has a new horse. He recently traded with Charlie Zimmerman for Mainspring, which he will show in the Texas conformation hunter ranks. This horse was reserve hunter champion at the Pin Oaks Show this year.

Capt. M. T. Giles has leased his Hunter Creek Stables in Houston to F. G. Krauskoff and has taken over a new establishment in Fort Worth. It is to be known as Ridglea Hills Stables and should prove most successful for Fort Worth is an up and coming hunter and jumper town.

LADY MARSHALL

Miss Nancy Lee Huffman of The Briar Patch, Hilton Village, Va. has accounted for many tri-colors and ribbons with her Waverly Molly and later brought along Lady Marshall, a brown mare. Recently the young lady was leading the mare down the road to turn her out in the field when a truck came along. The mare became frightened, slipped and fractured her stifle. She was taken to Richmond where she was put under the close scrutiny of a veterinarian but it was impossible to save her and she had to be put down.

WINTER QUARTERS

With the start of the hunting season and preparations being made to go into winter training quarters by many of the country's racing stables, equine activities have been stepped up in the Middleburg area, in recent weeks.

Trainer Tom Rodrock who makes his headquarters at the William Hitt training stable in Middleburg, is expecting three yearlings from Lexington, Ky. They include a bay filly by Amphitheatre out of the producer of 7 winners, Cachuca; a chestnut colt by *Princequillo out of *Miss Marker, dam of the 1951 two-year-old winner, John Alden, her first foal; and a chestnut colt by Blue Swords out of the dam Legenda, winner of 23 races, including a 6 furlong performance of 1:10 2-5 at Hialeah.

The three yearlings, property of Happy Hill Farm and James Henderson, will join the remainder of the Happy Hill farm string for winter training at Middleburg. These include a chestnut yearling filly by Vincentive—Diva, by Bull Lea, which was purchased at Saratoga from the consignment of Mrs. Marie Moore; the 2-year-olds, Blue Room (*Brown King—Blues Singer, by *Bull Dog); Screaming Mimi (War Relic—Lady Noonday, by Reaping Reward); Merry Mount (Brookfield—Helen Gleason, by Wise Counselor); The 3-year-old fillies, Convert (Unbreakable—*Evangelist II, by Asterus), Blue Mirage (*Isolater—Blues Singer, by *Bull Dog) and *Dorienne (by Dogat—Loet, by Pharos). The latter three have won two races apiece in 1951.

Others who will be readying many prospects for the 1952 racing season are Mrs. D. N. Lee, trainers Jack Skinner, Arthur White and Larry Mills. Trainers of show ring jumpers and hunters will also be getting many of their veteran campaigners and new prospects fit for next year.—Easy Mark

AT FARAWAY

Currently visiting their Faraway Farm near Lexington, are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jeffords, the owners of Pavot. This son of Case Ace is a fashionable up-and-coming young stallion whose first crop to race reached the tracks this year. He was the two-year-old juvenile champion of 1944.—R. S.

REVERSE PRACTICE

It is common practice for horse show enthusiasts to graduate to owning Thoroughbreds, but the reverse is the exception. However, J. L. Younghusband, of Barrington, Illinois, has achieved it by disposing of his entire Thoroughbred holdings (which includes the crack sprinter Lexton) in order to devote his entire time and energy to expanding his show horse interests. A total 23 horses of his ownership are due to be sold at a special sale at the Fair Grounds, Louisville, on Saturday, November 10 at 10:00 a. m.—R. S.

VANNING ACCIDENT

News has been flashed back to Lexington of a tragedy resulting from a serious horse van accident. Five yearlings, all purchased at the recent Keeneland Fall Sales were killed and four others so seriously injured that they are believed to be worthless, when their van went off the road, overturned, struck a water ditch, and then caught fire. The holocaust occurred near Marshall, Texas. The yearlings were owned by Mr. T. P. Morgan and were en route to his ranch near Rebuffo, Texas.—R. S.

CITATION HAS VISITOR

An indefatigable Keeneland Sales visitor was Mrs. Margaret Leonard of Brentwood, Tennessee. She combined her sales visit with a tour of Calumet Farm (by special permission of Mr. Paul Ebelhardt) where she was privileged to watch the great Citation contentedly munching his oats of retirement. Mrs. Leonard is on the other side of 60 and has for the past two years ridden her own horse Tonto C in the ladies' race at the Iroquois meeting held at Percy Warner Park.—R. S.

SOLD NO CARES

Calumet Farm recently sold the 2-year-old, No Cares (*Blenheim II—No Blues by Bull Lea) to trainer Joe Hall. It will race in the Woodley Lane Farm colors, and is expected to start in Florida this winter. Although in training, No Cares (who is a half brother to Theory) has not yet started.—R. S.

MERRYLAND FARM'S YEARLINGS

Owners, breeders, trainers, and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Shea gathered at Merryland Farm Sunday, October 28 for the fifth annual yearling trials wherein 32 of the yearlings Danny and his son Bobby are training for the farm's clients were exhibited.

Six sets were shown with each group galloping in perfect alignment and breaking the same way. No attempt at showing real speed was made in view of the early morning rains and the slippery condition of the track. The crowd was entertained with a barbecue served in the
